FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY AT 31 OCT 2023

After 18 months of aggressively raising interest rates to combat inflation, the US economy is showing signs of acceleration once more. This has consequently, tightened financial conditions aggressively in recent months. The squeeze is driven by a combination of factors, including better than expected US economic data, a deteriorating US fiscal outlook, and the Federal Reserve's (Fed) indication that it will likely maintain higher interest rates for an extended period. One of the notable developments is the rise in US bond yields, which have now reached levels not seen since 2006-2007. The increase in yields has been more pronounced for longer-dated bonds. Since 30 June 2023, 2-year, 10-year, and 30-year US bond yields have surged by 19bps, 107bps, and 120bps, respectively. As a result, the US yield curve, which had been inverted since July 2022, is now disinverting, with the 2v10 spread narrowing from -106bps to -18bps during the same period. This trend isn't limited to the United States alone as other advanced economies are also experiencing tightening financing conditions, coupled with a slowdown in economic growth. Meanwhile, China is actively implementing measures to stimulate its economy, and the Bank of Japan (BOJ) has made adjustments to its yield curve control policy by allowing the Japanese 10-year bond yield to drift above 1%, redefining this threshold as a loose reference point rather than a rigid interest rate cap. Looking domestically, headline inflation has accelerated once again, reaching 5.4% YoY in September, up from 4.8% YoY in August. Notably, core inflation, excluding the volatile food and fuel categories, moderated to 4.5% YoY from 4.8% YoY in August, a downward movement that exceeded market expectations. The derivatives market continues to price at least one more interest rate hike from the South African Reserve Bank (SARB), albeit with a reduced probability compared to September. To take advantage of high-interest rates while maintaining low duration, more than 90% of the portfolio consists of floating-rate notes (FRN). To minimise credit risk, approximately 75% of the portfolio is invested in debt instruments with AAA and AA credit ratings. The primary objective of this fund remains capital preservation while delivering income returns that exceed those offered by money market portfolios.

A higher TER ratio does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER cannot be regarded as an indication of future TER's. Transaction Costs are a necessary cost in administering the Fund and impacts Fund returns. The TIC should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over me including market returns, the type of Fund, the investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER. The TER and Transaction cost calculations are based upon the portfolio's direct costs for the financial year ended 30 June 2023, whilst the underlying portfolios ratio and cost calculations are based upon their most recent published figures, being 30 June 2023.
